9729 Voters Register In County

Voter registration in Milam County has climbed to 9,729 as of October 7, however this is not the final figure, the county tax assessor-collector's office advised The Herald.

This compares with registration of 9,637 in 1968, the last presidential election. In 1970, 9,099 were registered, the office said.

Bob Johnson, head of the Texas Election Bureau, estimated Thursday that between 3.5 million and 3.7 million persons will vote in the state in the general election November 7.

The secretary of state estimated earlier that total vote registration is 4.6 million.

The Texas vote for president four years ago was 3,078,917.

In the 1968 election, Democrat Hubert Humphrey carried the state over Richard Nixon by 38,960 votes, with American Party candidate George Wallace obtaining 584,269 ballots, or 18.1 percent.

Straw Vote Favors School

ROSEBUD

A straw vote taken from readers of The Rosebud News on whether or not they would like to see a regional correctional school and facility in this area indicate most are for the school. The Texas Department of Corrections plans building a regional school for inmates who are in their final months of a prison term. The school is to be built somewhere within the Heart of Texas Council of Governments 11 county area.

Two McGregor students at Texas A&M University -- Layne Kruse and William Wade -- have been nominated for Rhodes Scholarships. Thirty-two students in the United States are nominated each year for the Rhodes Scholarship which means two years study at Oxford.

Disorder Equipment Issued

HEARNE

Civil disorder equipment was issued to the Hearne Police Department made possible by the Criminal Justice Council through the Brazos Valley Development Council. Hearne received a 75 percent grant toward purchase of eight complete uniforms including helmets, shields, bullet proof vests and tear gas launcher. The equipment may be used anywhere in case of emergency or disaster.

Clay Elects First Officers

CALDWELL

The newly formed town of Clay elected its first officers in a special election held Saturday. Mrs. Mary F. Mack was elected mayor by a vote of 42 to 19 over her opponent. Five candidates for aldermen were unopposed on the ballot and were elected. On July 22 the voters of Clay voted in favor of incorporation of the town by a vote of 54 to 23. The recent election of officers will permit the new town government to begin its official business.

Discipline Problems Aired

SOMERVILLE

Discipline problems were discussed at the October meeting of school trustees, including abusive language, misconduct, both in school and at local football games, and monopoly of the restrooms at ball games by certain groups; milling of students within confines of the stadium that block and affect the comfort of patrons at games. Local law enforcement officers were asked to be more evenly dispersed at the games.

Alcoa Donates Hospital Site

ROCKDALE

Rockdale's proposed new 47-bed hospital building project moved a step closer to reality when Alcoa donated nearly two city blocks, or about 10 acres, in the Meadowbrook Addition for the hospital site. Fred Bergeron, Rockdale Works manager, said "Alcoa feels that the new hospital will be a worthwhile vital addition to our community." The Alcoa Foundation had already given $100,000 to the hospital building fund.

Waco Water Fluorided

WACO

Equipment to fluoridate Waco water has been installed and went into operation last week. Both water treatment plants have fluoridation systems which will adjust the amount of fluoride in Waco drinking water to the exact amount needed for prevention of dental cavities in children.

Outreach Clinic Keeps Patients Home

Milam County's Outreach Clinic marked its first full year of operation this month with a near perfect record of helping former Austin State Hospital patients stay out of the hospital and in their home environment.

An estimated caseload of 45 had climbed to 58 the first month the clinic opened in Cameron and now stands at 68. Only one clinic patient has returned to the hospital.

Prime factor in keeping the more than 60 patients well and at home is the clinic staff: Dr. Z. M. Josephs, psychiatrist, Mrs. Norma Wallace, director, Mrs. Nona Miller, case-worker, and Mrs. Mildred Baker, secretary.

'Operation Kick-It' Is PTA Program For Thursday

"Operation Kick-It" is the program for the Cameron PTA when it meets Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Ben Milam lunchroom. The program will be conducted by three inmates of the Texas Department of Corrections, in an effort to actively combat the growing drug abuse problem.

The program attempts to strike at the heart of the drug problem by demonstrating what can happen to the drug abuser.

"Operation Kick-It", a panel of three inmates, has been touring the state since June, 1970, telling the story of drug misuse before junior and senior high school assemblies.

Through this program, the inmates are enabled to speak directly to the public and present their simple message -- "Illegal drugs are dangerous. Drug abuse is against the law and you can go to prison for it. We did."

The three volunteer panelists are young, first offenders, age 17-21. Each was convicted for the violations of the dangerous drug and narcotic statutes of the Texas Penal Code.

Each inmate tells briefly about his home, life, how he began using drugs, and the events leading to his arrest.

"Operation Kick-It", which is funded by a grant from the Governor's Council on Criminal Justice, is similar in format to the highly successful "Operation: Teenage," which was established in 1962.

The appeal of "Operation Kick-It" is straightforward and sincere. As one inmate summarizes it, "Down at the pen, it's the simple things that count. Don't ignore the simple life, because that is where it's at."

The panel of inmates will be giving this same program to Yoe High School classes throughout Thursday.

Most patients merely report at regular intervals to receive medication as directed by the Austin State Hospital. Dr. Josephs, chief of the Mental Hygiene Clinic and Day Treatment Center at Waco VA hospital joins the staff each Wednesday afternoon to counsel with patients needing special attention.

Dr. Josephs describes his weekly hours in Cameron as satisfying because of the obvious need for the clinic and the cooperative and appreciative attitude of the patients.

"I came up in the day of electric shock treatment in hospitals," Dr. Josephs said. "The move to outpatient clinics is much better."

A native of Marshall, Texas, with a BA degree in Zoology from the University of Texas and M. D. from the U of T medical branch at Galveston, Dr. Josephs had worked almost exclusively with veterans before accepting the part-time post as consulting psychiatrist in Milam County.

He served as an Army doctor in the Pacific during World War II and later served a residency in psychiatry at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Little Rock, Arkansas. He remained on the staff of that hospital until transferring to Waco Veterans Hospital in 1969.

As the caseload has increased, the clinic staff has been forced to become more selective about new patients. First consideration is for former state hospital patients. Mrs. Wallace said regular requests are received for juvenile and marriage counseling. She said the clinic is not staffed for this at present but hoped counselors in these fields would be available in the future.

Judge O. B. Harden said the county would pursue assurances made last year that juvenile counseling would be made available on a regular basis in Milam County within the year.

Open House Held At New Building

An open house was held on Sunday afternoon, October 29, in the new Marian Professional Building by the Sisters of St. Edward Hospital and Dr. S. H. Richardson and Dr. E. Douglas Perrin, who recently opened offices in the building.

The Marian Professional Building is the newest completion in Cameron's current building boom. It is located on the north side of the St. Edward Hospital grounds and near the site of the old hospital building which was torn down last year.

One story, of brick veneer, steel frame and glass construction, it is ultra-modern in design, and is in two connected units. Unit A, the center unit, measures 52 by 71 feet; Unit B, adjoining it on the south, is 52 by 52 feet. Each unit includes two suites of offices.

Its walls of tan brick, the extensive use of bronze solar glass in windows and across the front entrance, and a brown shingled roof give the structure a strikingly attractive appearance.

Entrance to the building is from a large parking lot in front and along a short walkway. The front doors open into a foyer extending across the front of Unit A and linking it with Unit B. Entrance to the suites of offices is along hallways leading from the foyer.

Each of the suites include a reception room for patients, a business office, three or four examining rooms, laboratory space and a private office.

The building's interior has been finished in the modern concept that combines the functional and the decorative that is being used in many of today's most modern office and professional buildings. Walls of hallways and some offices are covered with vinyl material in colors ranging from olive green to white. Other rooms and offices have wood paneled

SAFETY TIPS OFFERED FOR HALLOWEEN

Things will "go bump in the night" here Tuesday, when the children spread out over town for Halloween "trick or treat." Safety suggestions are in order for both tricksters and motorists on that night.

The Insurance Information Institute strongly warns that while Halloween can be a fun night for children, it is also potentially dangerous for them as they wander the darkened streets in awkward, difficult-to-see costumes and vision-impairing masks.

The Institute offered the following safety tips to motorists and parents of trick-or-treaters:

To parents -- Escort your littlest ones. If your children are going as a group, give the oldest a flashlight. Dress the kids in bright clothing or stick reflective tape on their costumes or trick or treat bags. Use a scissors to widen the eye holes in their masks. Urge them to look up and down a street before crossing.

To motorists -- Drive slowly and warily. Watch for children darting out between parked cars. Tap your horn occasionally on dimly-lighted residential streets. Be extremely cautious while backing out of driveways.

Water Balloons Net $27.50 Fine

The Cameron Police Department issued a warning about throwing water balloons on Halloween night. Chief Felipe Martinez reminds incipient balloon throwers that the fine for throwing balloons is $27.50.

A number of broken windshields have resulted from water balloons.

walls. Floors are either of tile or are carpeted. The floor of the front foyer is in ceramic tile. Drapes throughout are white and contrast with the colored walls and the bronze solar glass windows.

Dr. S. H. Richardson occupies a suite of offices in Unit A, and Dr. Douglas Perrin has his office in a suite in Unit B. The two other suites are presently unoccupied, but Sister Kostka said efforts are being made to rent them in the near future.

Cost of construction of the Marian Professional Building was $165,000, she said. The parking lot cost was over $5,000, and other expenses ran the cost of the new facility to a total of $172,930.

Urban Construction of Houston was the building contractor and Edward Blinn was the company's superintendent in charge of construction.

The Order In Simplicity...

We see the success of simplicity all around us. And we find that simplicity of motion, form, thought, performance is indeed difficult to attain.

Now there is a remake of the movie adaptation of the James Hilton book, "Lost Horizon." It is to be another rendition, according to Reuters, of "the idea that you can find a place in the world which believes in the natural way to live, a place where man can preserve thought and philosophy."

"It's an ecologist's wonderland," says film director Charles Jarrott, and "the keynote of this Utopia is simplicity."

This picture should find a massive audience in this country. A sense of unity with nature never has been desired more in recent history in this country. It started with nature foods among the late-60s hips, then bicycling and jogging and camping and other next-to-nature activity.

A sense of physical well being is difficult in urban America. But there is 98 percent of the land still relatively unoccupied. And it is accessible.

A Utopia is all but impossible in fact, but in a clear mind in a healthy body, it is a manageable and resourceful dream to draw upon.

This celluloid reminder that the need for nature is not new, in fact is timeless, encourages us to bring nature's realities closer to our sense of what is needed in personal lives and in the lives of whole peoples.

The complex can be captured, the order in it the key to simplicity, or an understanding of ourselves.

What Others Say-

Age Of Amplification

Without microphones, the ancient Greeks ran their huge popular assemblies and assembled huge theater audiences for tragedy and comedy and satyr-play, and apparently the many thousands present heard enough of what took place to keep coming.

But right down to the age of the microphone, ability to make a large audience hear was a cherished trait, carefully cultivated by speakers.

The softness of the "crooners" early in the Age of Amplification and the loudness of the rock stars in the current stage were both responses to the state of the art at the time. Crude early amplifiers just could not handle the louder noises.

We can only guess what singing and speaking styles sounded like in the days before recordings: words and notations give only a very approximate idea. How did Cicero sound in the Roman forum, or Demosthenes in the Athenian assembly? How did Shakespeare's lines sound in the Globe? What was bel canto opera like in its former heyday, before Joan Sutherland?

And what in the world did Tolstoy mean, when he said of one of his noblemen at a reading in a salon, that the "beauty of his elocution was . . . between a despairing howl and a tender whine?"

Governor Approves Grants For Justice

Governor Preston Smith today approved two grants totaling $41,247 to the 52nd Judicial District and to the Bell County Mental Health/Mental Retardation Center.

The money will come from the Criminal Justice Council, which oversees statewide law enforcement planning and administers funds from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for crime control projects in Texas.

The Bell County Mental Health/Mental Retardation Center received $17,167 third year funding from CJC. The center provides diagnostic and consultation services to courts and probatory services and presentence investigations for the four counties that make up the 52nd Judicial District: Bosque, Hamilton, Coryell and Comanche.

This grant will continue furnishing funds for a regional probation supervisor and 50 percent of the salary for a probation officer. Local contribution will include $9,000 in-kind match and $5,100 in cash.

tion departments in the Central Texas Council of Governments area.

Other counties in the Central Texas COG area are: Bell, Lampasas, Milam, Mills and San Saba.

The two applications were among 29, for funding of $1,362,227, considered by the CJC Executive Committee Oct. 13.

Phnom Penh Renewal Stops

By John Parcell
Reuter Correspondent

PHNOM PENH

The guns have fallen silent around the massive temple complex of Angkor but urgently needed restoration work on the ancient city in northwest Cambodia has been abandoned.

A year ago the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) expert Hiroshi Daifuku visited the site and reported: "Angkor is in danger. The shadow of war threatens this great architectural complex, steeped in history and breathtaking in its beauty."

Since then the temples have been the object of an eight-month battle; and French led preservation work has been brought to a violent close.

Nobody knows exactly how much damage has been done this year by shellfire and the ever-encroaching jungle to the 60 square mile city whose construction began 10 centuries ago.

But archaeological experts believe the 100 massive temples of the city which have been dug out of the jungle and restored could be at a considerable risk.

At least one major temple has been battered by the fighting. Others face rapid natural decay unless the restoration work which exposed their intricately sculpted towers and vivid bas-reliefs is restarted within the next year.

Angkor, 150 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, was first occupied by north Vietnamese troops without a fight as they pushed westwards through Cambodia in June, 1970, shortly after the outbreak of hostilities here.

For a year and a half, accompanied by the protests of the Cambodian government, the Vietnamese communists used the temple city as a logistics base and leave center.

Archaeological work continued under French experts Bernard-Philippe Groslier, who like his father has dedicated his life to Angkor.

But last January, according to intelligence sources, the growing Cambodian communist movement fostered by the North Vietnamese Army demanded that its own forces occupy the temples. The ancient buildings form the national symbol on the flag of both the Cambodian Guerrillas and the Phnom Penh government.

The 2,000 North Vietnamese troops agreed, leaving behind only a few of their men with the local guerrillas and about 10,000 refugees who had made their homes on the site.

Later that month disaster struck the monuments. The Communists turned on Dr. Groslier and his 1,150 workers, killing some, arresting others and forcing the rest to flee.

The government Army, seizing what looked like a chance to regain the national symbol from a less formidable enemy, moved up troops and launched a limited attack.

To minimize damage, strict orders were given against the use of artillery or small arms in the vicinity of the temples. The plan was to soften up the communists with napalm bombing and commando raids, then to surround the complex and starve them into submission.

The operation, dubbed "Angkor Chey" (victory at Angkor), dragged on until Sept. 21, and tied down as many as 7,000 Cambodian troops against a much smaller guerrilla force dug in behind the priceless walls. Not a single yard of ground was taken and held.

The damage has not been catalogued but there are some alarming indications. A refugee living in the complex was given a miniature camera by a Cambodian photographer and smuggled out pictures of Angkor Wat, the 12th-century masterpiece of the whole city. They show the collapse of the supporting scaffolding along one side of the huge structure.

Dear Sir: Enclosed is a picture of the undersigned and Mrs. Strum which appeared in the San Antonio Express of Oct. 12, 1972 which is forwarded in case you desire to print any part of same.

For your information I was born in Cameron and graduated from Cameron High School in May 1916. Shortly after moving to San Antonio I entered the Federal service and completed 41 years of such service retiring as a Colonel Army of United States in July 1957. My Father, Ben Strum, was the first owner of the Auditorium Hotel which later became the Cameron Hotel located catercornered from the Court House. Also my is water, dye and, normally, corrosion inhibitors. If you mix one-half methyl alcohol and one-half water your coolant has a freezing point of 51 degrees below zero but the boiling point of the radiator fluid is lowered from 212 degrees to 172 degrees. It is apparent that a mixture such as this will boil away rapidly in the cooling systems of most modern automobiles.

Ethylene glycol is composed of about 93% ethylene glycol, 4% water, 3% rust and corrosion inhibitors and dye. In addition, some brands have anti-leak material. If your radiator contains one-half ethylene glycol and one-half water, your coolant has a freezing point of 34 degrees below zero but the boiling point is raised to about 265 degrees. Since this boiling point is high enough to prevent ethylene glycol from boiling away at usual engine operating temperatures, such a solution should last for thousands of miles of driving.

How can you tell which is the best quality of antifreeze? The best way is by reading the label on the container.

Letters to the Editor

Oct. 23, 1972

Father was a city Alderman and Mayor of Cameron for many years. The first act when he was elected Mayor was to reduce his salary from $50.00 per month to $25.00 per month. His major accomplishments, during the time he served as Mayor, were as follows:

- (1) Installation of street lights.
- (2) Placed cross walks at all intersections in the downtown section.
- (3) Installed a water filtering plant to cleanse and purify the drinking water.
- (4) First macadamized roads put in use in the city.

Farm Bureau Adopts Property Protection Plan

Milam County Farm Bureau has adopted the new Property Protection Plan offered by the Texas Farm Bureau.

Effective November 1, 1972, all members who have the official "No Trespassing" signs posted on their property will be protected against trespass and other offenses. This reward program is provided by the Texas Farm Bureau and affiliated insurance companies.

Action was taken by the Directors to adopt the program.

The new service-to-member program provides for the posting of property according to the new anti-trespass law passed during the last regular session of the Legislature.

A reward of $200 is offered by the Texas Farm Bureau and Insurance Companies for information leading to the arrest and final conviction of persons committing trespass, felony theft, arson, or malicious mischief as defined by Article 1350 on property of a current Farm Bureau Member.

Each member will automatically have protection on the effective date provided he has properly posted his property. Signs will be available from the county Farm Bureau at a cost of 50¢ each.

In addition to the sign, the member may elect to purchase name plates that may be attached to the sign. These cost an additional 75¢ each. Decals for automobiles, trucks and other vehicles will be provided at no cost to the member.

The county Farm Bureau will be responsible for completing a form furnished to them for the purpose of reporting information leading to the arrest and final conviction under the program.

The Farm Bureau insurance adjuster will investigate and send the report with further information to the state office. The $200 check will be sent from the Texas Farm Bureau to the county Farm Bureau president who will deliver it to the property owner.

There is no cost to the individual member for the protection except for the sign and optional name plates to be attached to the signs. The county Farm Bureau assumes the cost of the program which is 20¢ for each current member of the organization not having a fire or casualty policy with the Texas Farm Bureau Insurance Companies.

Shoe Prices Show Jump

COLLEGE STATION
Why the current jump in shoe prices?

"Despite a widespread belief, the rise is not mainly due to an increase in cattle hide prices," says Dr. Ed Uvacek, livestock marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The price of cattle hides is only one of the major factors in determining shoe prices, he explains. A typical fresh hide weighs about 75 pounds and yields around 48 pounds of cured hide. This past June the cost of a cured hide, including brokerage and freight, accounted for 61 per cent of the price of shoe leather.

"A person going to a shoe store for a pair of shoes can expect to pay $32.46 for a pair of shoes. This is typical of prices people are now paying for shoes. The retailer buys this pair of shoes from the factory for only $16.23. One reason for the high prices consumers are paying for shoes is the retailer's large mark-up," Uvacek points out.

"The dollar value of leather in our hypothetical pair of shoes costs only $4.38." Domestic cattle hide prices more than doubled between August, 1971 and June, 1972. Strong demand for leather, a sharp drop in hide exports from Argentina, and discontinuance of U. S. production of two major synthetic substitutes in 1971 caused domestic prices to rise to historic highs, says the specialist.

Baptists Set General Convention

ABILENE
In stead of staying home to greet "trick-or-treaters" and other assorted witches, skeletons and hobgoblins, some 6,000 Texas Baptists will journey to Abilene this Halloween for the 87th annual session of the Baptist General Convention of Texas (BGCT).

Halloween night, Tuesday, Oct. 31, will find them at Abilene's Taylor County Coliseum for the opening session of the convention which will run through Nov. 2.

A Christian Rock Festival, featuring singing groups and internationally known evangelist, Barry Wood of California, will kick off the Texas Baptist Men's convention at Hardin-Simmons Monday afternoon.

Television Personality Art Linkletter, Southern Baptist Convention President Owen Cooper of Yazoo City, Miss., National Holiday Inns Executive Wallace Johnson of Memphis, Tenn., and former Southern Baptist Convention President J. D. Grey of New Orleans, La., will be among headliners during the main sessions of the 1.9 - million - member BGCT at the coliseum and Abilene's Civic Center.

Poage To Speak At Awards Supper

Cong Bob Poage will be the guest speaker at the second annual Little River-San Gabriel Soil and Water Conservation District Awards supper. The supper will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, November 6 at the First Baptist Education and Recreation Center in Bartlett.

The supper is to honor farmers and ranchers in the District who have carried out good conservation programs on their lands. Also invited will be members of various agricultural agencies, businessmen, congressmen and senators who assist the District in carrying out its numerous soil and water conservation programs. Special recognition will be given to the District's outstanding conservation farmer and the outstanding reclamation farmer for 1972.

Tickets for the supper are available for $2.25 from the following: First Bank and Trust Co., Steglich Feed and Farm Supply and Gilbert Kretschmar in Bartlett, Albin Dykowski, and the First State Bank in Granger, First National Bank in Schwertner, Ton Burress in Florence, and Henry Abel in Sharp.

thetic substitutes in 1971 caused domestic prices to rise to historic highs, says the specialist.

"With a growing population, the actual number of beef hides produced in the U. S. is still about equal with the number produced in 1967. Exportation of hides has increased since 1967. With present trends continuing, prices can only go up," believes Uvacek.

What effect did the doubling of hide prices during the past year have on the price of shoes?
"This jump in hide prices would cause the price of our hypothetical pair of shoes to increase about 75 cents," Uvacek adds.

Rep. Kubiak Says Session Productive

Rep. Dan Kubiak said the called session of the Legislature was productive, in spite of its failure to produce a compromise insurance rate bill.

Writing in his weekly newsletter, Kubiak said the insurance laws will be revised under new leadership in the House and Senate during the regular session of the legislature which begins in January of 1973.

The session repealed the controversial trailer brake and light law. Also accomplished was the establishment of a super port for loading and unloading tenders off the Gulf Coast. "This will bring millions of dollars and thousands of new jobs to Texas in the future," Rep. Kubiak stated.

In addition, the legislature passed a resolution blocking the construction of the 11-story Highway building across from the Governor's Mansion and the Capitol. It also passed a bill that restores medical benefits to needy Texans, most of them elderly, who were denied care when Congress granted a 20 percent increase in Social Security benefits.

Resolutions passed included one calling for Congress to increase the cotton loan limit to 50 percent of parity or 28 cents per pound. Another resolution called for Congress to investigate the recent "wheat deal" which has wheat farmers smarting over losses of income ranging to $150 million as a result of early sales of wheat.

Santa Fe Reports Earnings

Record earnings for the third quarter and first nine months of 1972 for Santa Fe Industries, Inc. were announced today by Ernest S. Marsh, chairman.

Third quarter earnings were $24.1 million, or 96 cents per share, an increase of 42 1/2 percent over the $16.9 million, or 67 cents per share before extraordinary items last year. Nine months earnings of $60.8 million, or $2.43 per share, represented an increase of 40 percent over the 1971 figures of $43.4 million, or $1.73 per share, before extraordinary items.

Included in the net income for 1972 were investment tax credits of $3.4 million for the third quarter, and $9.9 million for the nine months.

Third quarter revenues were $250 million, compared to $222.8 million in 1971. About $20 million of the $27.2 million increase came from rail freight revenues, of which the major portion represents increased business local to the Santa Fe, including substantial movements of wheat for export.

Operating income for the quarter was up $6.3 million, and increased $11 million for the nine months. Transportation operating income accounted for $5.9 million of the nine-month increase.

New Law Would Control Dogs

By Bruce Jones

CANBERRA, Australia capital territory advisory council has become known as the "Pied Piper ordinance"

--but it deals with dogs instead of rats. Unlike the fairytale Pied Piper who rid the German town of Hamelin of rats -- and, when he was refused payment, of children -- the law is aimed at Canberra's dogs. Already approved by a council sub-committee, the ordinance makes it an offence for a dog to be within 10 yards of almost anything in public. For example, if a dog is caught within 10 yards of a public picnic spot or a designated swimming area on the shores of the city's Lake Burley Griffin, the owner may be liable to a fine of $50. The same would apply if the dog wandered within 10 yards of a shop doorway, a child's swing or merry-go-round in a public playground, or on a playing field where organized sport was being played. The ordinance would shorten the life of any dog seized and placed in the Canberra pound to only five days, unless claimed by its owner. Neither could any animal be sold from the Canberra pound. The territory's Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (R.S.P.C.A.) opposes some aspects of the ordinance. The society's inspector here, A. E. Sims, has described the regulations as "stupid."

Sims disclosed that he averaged about 700 calls a year, and that about 80 per cent of them concerned dogs being tied up while their owners were away from home. Exercise for many dogs in Canberra consists of being taken for a run in the local park, to the shops, or the local swimming area. "Where can these people take their dogs now?", Sims asked. "A dog is part of a family's life -- I think it is wonderful to see a family picnicking beside the lake with the children running around on the grass under the trees and playing with their dog." The R.S.P.C.A. is pleased with one aspect of the ordinance which encourages owners to have their dogs de-sexed. Owners of sterilized dogs would pay a lifetime licence fee of only five dollars, compared with twice that amount for an unsterilized dog. Taking or permitting a female dog in heat in a public place would leave the owner open to a fine of $50. The ordinance states that its aims are to provide greater administrative control over dogs in the territory and to place the responsibility for controlling dogs as far as possible on their owners.

Community
Day Service
Set Friday

Church Women United in Cameron will celebrate World Community Day at 2 p.m. Friday, November 3, at the First Presbyterian Church. Theme for the celebration is "Coming of Age." Rev. John Homerstad, pastor of Abiding Savior Lutheran Church will be guest speaker.

The "Coming of Age" recognizes the millions of eighteen-to-twenty-one year-olds who will be participating in a national election for the first time and will be joining their elders in assuming full citizenship responsibilities.

The "coming of age" applies also the older celebrants as they recognize that mature Christian citizenship is never an accomplished fact, but a constant process of "Coming of Age." They welcome the idealism, vigor, and commitment to a peaceful world community that the young people bring with them as citizens come of age.

Women of all churches are invited to join the united celebration, which will feature songs, reminders of God's eternal promises in this season of meaningless political ones, and the sharing of dreams between old and young. Some hopes for society will be expressed by individuals during the service, but other concerns for peace, the environment, race food, local and world conditions, lifestyles and other specific dreams will be shared informally, according to Mrs. W. C. Freeman, spokesman for the Church Women United.

Doors Of Yoe

By Marilyn Hauk

Apparently some strange things are taught in Yoe High English classes. On one English book written on the spine in perfect lettering was the subject of the book - "Grammar." Ernie Provassek, didn't they teach spelling in Junior High?

Will has a secret admirer roaming the halls of Yoe High School. Will, what are those little notes that keep popping up on your locker?

The Senior English classes have recently memorized the Prologue to the Canterbury Tales, causing misery for many. Gary Meyer sat in DE class one day with eyes tightly closed trying to say it silently to himself. Apparently he was not as silent as he thought himself to be, for he looked up to see the entire class listen to him recite.

Chaucer might have been quite disturbed to hear one student's bout with old English - "When that Aprille with his shoures soote, The droghte of March hath per-

CAMERON AUTHOR Luther Poole discusses his first novel "Dad, This Is Your Son" with Cynthia Kreig, assistant Librarian at the Cameron Public Library, where two copies of the book will be available for loan. Poole, a native of Milam County, tells the story of a modern, happy young family that is shaken by the dark shadow of doubt and mistrust and the effect it has on everyone involved. Poole presented two copies of the book to the local library and announced that a second book "Salty Boy" will be published in November.

Club Told Of
New Image
For Library

Libraries are no longer the 'hush, hush' places of the past," Mrs. Roland Murry told an audience of Cameron History Club members and guests Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Murry, director of children's libraries in Houston, said modern libraries are the scene of activity and wide interests. She said programs in the Houston libraries range from rock group performances to dramatics and even teen dances.

She said one of the important changes in the modern library was the entrance of men into the profession.

The program was held at the home of Mrs. Nelson Green with Miss Mildred Thornton serving as co-hostess.

Autumn scenes decorated the Green home for the afternoon meeting. Of particular note was a pilgrim family made of corn shucks and topiary trees decorated with corn shuck roses. Both decorations were made by Mrs. Harry Tag.

Gold daisy chrysanthemums centered the serving table in the dining room. Assisting at the table were Mrs. Bill McCutchen and Mrs. Harry Tag.

Special guests for the meeting were Mrs. John N. Homerstad, Mrs. Robert C. Hudson, Mrs. Dan McDaniel and Mrs. Bill McCutchen.

Glacier Poses Threat To Swiss Alpine Village

By Hugo Anson

RANDA, Switzerland

The inhabitants of this Swiss Alpine village are waiting for avalanche experts to tell them whether they are in real danger from a massive hanging glacier which threatens to wipe the village off the map.

Randa - Population 420 - lies at the foot of the Weisshorn Mountain in the Valais Alps, about eight miles down the Mattertal Vally from the famous summer and winter resort of Zermatt.

Towering above it, on the other side of the Mattervisp River, is the majestic Bisgletscher ice-river running in a broad swathe down its right flank.

A crevasse has developed at the top of the glacier, about 100 feet wide and 1,000 feet long.

Local authorities are concerned that the glacier could split in two, sending about 400,000 tons of snow, ice and rock hurtling down the mountainside. Federal avalanche experts say the avalanche would probably not hit Randa, but the air blast it created would destroy the village.

The crevasse has widened dramatically over the past year and is now around 650 feet deep.

Glaciers are normally full of cracks, caused by the shifting pressures of the ice as it gradually moves down the mountain.

But three local mountain guides who visited the area recently were astounded when they noticed how rapidly this particular split was developing, and reported the matter immediately.

In the neighboring Saas Fee Valley, 88 workers were killed in 1965 when the tongue of the Allalin Glacier broke off and sent hundreds of thousands of tons of ice plunging into a construction site.

The Bisgletscher has already claimed its toll in human lives. In 1936 more than 30 people were killed in an ice avalanche, and in 1919 two people died when the glacier sent 13 million cubic yards of ice and snow roaring down on to the valley floor.

With this in mind, the people of Randa have a right to be nervous. But if they are frightened, they are certainly concealing it very well.

The chairman of the village council, Joseph Zumtugwald, said it had rejected suggestions that the village should be evacuated. "We are waiting for the opinion of the federal experts, and we know there is no danger at the moment," he said.

"But in winter it would be a different matter. The volume of ice and snow would be far greater, so we must reach some sort of decision before winter begins."

He said the village, cantonal and federal authorities might decide to blast the glacier and break off the threatening tongue, after evacuating the village temporarily.

But for all their apparent untroubled calm, the villagers have clearly taken the threat seriously. An urgent letter was sent to the federal ca-

Hemingway Letters On Sale

By Marsha Dubrow

NEW YORK

Ernest Hemingway wrote that he never had any respect for F. Scott Fitzgerald except for his "wasted talent" -- but loved him very much -- in letters to be auctioned later this month here at Sotheby, Parke-Bernet Galleries.

In the eight letters to critic Arthur Mizener, Hemingway also said Fitzgerald's wife Zelda made him drink and that "Scott always seemed like a child trying to play in the big league."

Hemingway said that James Joyce was the "only alive writer that I ever respected."

He described Fitzgerald in another letter as "romantic, ambitious, and Christ, Jesus, God knows how talented. I never had any respect for him ever except for his lovely, golden, wasted talent."

He also wrote that "Scott took literature so solemnly. He never understood that it was just writing as well as you can and finishing what you start."

Hemingway wrote that "I loved Scott very much but he was extremely difficult with that situation he got himself into and Zelda constantly making him drink because she was jealous of his working well."

"I think Scott in his strange mixed-up Irish Catholic monogamy wrote for Zelda and when he lost all hope in her and she destroyed his confidence in himself he was through," a letter said.

SCLC Lacks Funds, Causes

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), the nation's leading civil rights voice before the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, is suffering from a lack of funds and clearly defined causes to champion.

The Atlanta-based SCLC recently dismissed nine full-time staff members and several other parttime employees at a savings of more than $100,000 a year.

Angered and frustrated by the cutbacks, SCLC executive director Stoney Cooks resigned in protest because he felt SCLC programs would have to be curtailed because of the staff reductions.

Cooks now is a volunteer worker in the Atlanta Congressional campaign of the Rev. Andrew Young, director of the Atlanta Community Relations Commission and also a former executive director of SCLC.

Cooks said he was particularly disappointed because he felt the cutbacks would hurt SCLC programs involving support for black candidates in the November elections.

He said SCLC could have "made an impact" on five congressional races, including the race between Young, who is black and Republican Rodney Cook, a wealthy white moderate, as well as two races in Alabama, one in Texas, and one in Los Angeles.

Longtime SCLC public relations director Tom Offenberg also resigned and is working in the Young Campaign. Benard Lee, executive assistant to SCLC president Ralph Abernathy, said the organization's financial situation is the worst it has ever been.

"Everyone is having to pinch pennies," Lee said. "It seems that the Nixon administration has gone out of its way to foster inflation on the country."

One SCLC aim next year, Lee said will be to try to push a bill through Congress that would "help children coming out of high school to go to college." He said the bill would provide a free college education to anyone who wanted it.

"There ought to be a guaranteed right to be educated just like there is a right to vote," Lee said. "The reaping of the harvest of such a college program would be for the good of the nation, a good investment for the country's growth."

SCLC also plans during 1973 to survey major jails and prisons to determine if prisoners are languishing behind bars with no hearings, trials or bail, Lee said.

And SCLC plans to continue its anti-war programs started by Dr. King, Lee added. He said Abernathy was in Chile this week at a "third world" conference "discussing peace and the problems of feeding people around the world. People have got to be fed in this world."

Quakes Down City Three Times

SKOPJE, Yugoslavia

Urban planners are striving to rebuild a city here which will be earthquake-proof for the first time in its 2,000-year history.

Earthquakes have destroyed Skopje three times--once in 518 A.D., when it was reputedly rebuilt by the Roman Emperor Justinian, then in the 16th century when the ruling Turks quickly restored it, and a third time in 1963, when 1,070 people died. Twenty-four lesser tremors have caused damage at various other periods.

After 1963 only 15 percent of Skopje's buildings were intact, and 78 countries have helped with the reconstruction. In the nine years since then, Skopje has been reborn as a modern urban complex with its sweeping roads, large grass-covered open spaces, and promenades along the swift-flowing Vardar River.

But the new urban plan, drawn up with the aid of the United Nations, is not based on aesthetic considerations.

A seismological study of the site, including earth drillings, has shown which city areas an earthquake is likely to be strongest. Accordingly new buildings are banned in certain zones and in other parts size is limited.

There are no buildings, for example along the river banks, which have been bulldozed to almost water level.

The studies showed a new earthquake would be particularly intense along the river, because of water which collected in the banks.

New buildings are built on a framework of vertical and horizontal pillars or reinforced concrete locked together for rigidity and anchored in special foundations.

Regulations also stipulate the space allowed between buildings, so that if one collapses it will not bring others down with it.

Special attention is paid to buildings with large numbers of people, such as schools, hospitals and theaters. They are designed to withstand an earthquake as strong as the one in 1963 without significant damage.

Their designs are submitted beforehand to Skopje's seismological institute, which surveys the entire earthquake-prone Balkan region.

Churches Seek Closer Views

By Nello Mitchell

BARBADOS

A concerted attempt is underway to bring religion closer to the people in the West Indies.

Lengthy discussions were held by 80 delegates at a conference of the Antilles Pastoral Institute here on streamlining religious rites within the cultural framework of the people.

The institute was established earlier this year by the Roman Catholic Church to enable church and lay people to study the radical rethinking and reorganization taking place in church doctrine and practice.

Delegates came from England, the United States, Surinam, Aruba, the U.S. Virgin Islands, British Honduras, Bermuda, Bahamas, Guyana and the eastern Caribbean.

Some of the delegates have insisted that the Roman Catholic Church and the established Christian churches in the region--the Anglican and the Presbyterian--must come to grips with the cultural and native expressions of religion in the Caribbean if they are to survive as a meaningful force.

The native expressions of religion come in many forms but they are largely of African heritage, the only exception being Hinduism and Islamism. They are all popular in varying degrees and are similar in certain respects though known by different names in the respective countries.

Some of the more popular forms are voodoo, from Haiti and pocomania, from Jamaica, which is similar to Barbados shouters, shakers, or tie-heads, so called because of the gyrations and screams of members during ritual. Rastafarianism, also from Jamaica, is practiced by people who believe that emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia is their god.

There is also the Shango ritual conducted mainly by Trinidadians who worship and make often bloody sacrifices to the Yoruba god of rain.

Delegates to the conference called on the Roman Catholic Church to study these local religious expressions before trying to apply changes inspired from outside the region.

Language Schools See Increase

By Martin Leebrun

LONDON

British language schools report a boom in the number of businessmen trying to learn a second language before Britain's entry into the European Common Market next January.

The old saying here that all foreigners understand English if it is spoken loud enough is dying out as the entry date approaches.

One language school said, there was "panic" amongst businessmen eager to speak to Europeans in their own language. School directors say classes have increased by between 10 and 30 percent since last year as hundreds of executives and salesmen try to prove that the British are not so bad at learning languages as many foreigners believe.

French is the most popular language, with German a close second. Italian and Spanish are also becoming more popular. One reason for the rush to acquire at least conversational ability is fear of competition in the home market from firms in Europe whose salesmen are already fluent in English.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Bertram S. Brown, M.D.
Director
National Institute of Mental Health
Finding Services

One of the difficulties people run into when confronted with a mental health problem is finding where to turn for help. They need to know how to locate the resources and facilities from which they can get treatment or advice and consultation.

This is why the National Institute of Mental Health has published a national mental health directory. It contains information on mental health treatment and rehabilitation resources available to the American people.

The directory is intended for use as a reference tool and locator for people in need of services as well as for the mental health planner, administrator, and practitioner.

This new publication clearly shows the wide and increasing range, number, and sophistication of mental health programs and services in the United States. More than 3,000 local, state, and federal facilities are listed—with such information given as name, address, phone, times of service, and kinds of services rendered.

Facilities listed include public and private mental hospitals, psychiatric services in general hospitals, residential treatment centers for emotionally disturbed children, outpatient psychiatric clinics, mental health day/night facilities, community mental health centers, and other multi-service and transitional mental health facilities.

In addition to listings of the above resources, the directory also includes listings of state mental health associations and of mental health information sources such as national agencies concerned with mental health and related problems.

Although the directory is useful for an individual who wishes to look up services and resources, it is relatively large and expensive for individual purchase and can often be found in community mental health and public health offices and in libraries. Titled "Mental Health Directory—1971," Public Health Service Publication No. 1268 (Rev. 1971), it is available for purchase at $3.75 per copy from the Superintendent of Documents, United States Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Fatal Hunting Accidents Can Be Avoided

Every hunter believes he is capable of handling his firearm properly, yet gunshot wounds were responsible for every one of the fatal hunting accidents in Texas in 1971.

"There is no excuse for carelessness in gun handling," said Lloyd Palmer, general manager, Texas Safety Association. "Hunting accidents due to firearms can be virtually eliminated if every gunner will acquaint himself with the fundamentals of gun handling and practice these fundamentals consistently."

These are ten of the handling safety rules recommended by the Texas Safety Association:

1. Treat every gun as though it were loaded and ready to shoot.
2. Guns carried into the home or camp should always be unloaded, taken down, or have actions open.

3. Be sure that the barrel and action are clear of obstructions.

4. Carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle at all times--even if you stumble. Keep the safety on until you are ready to shoot.

5. Don't pull the trigger until you are sure of your target.

6. Never point a gun at anything you don't want to shoot.

7. A gun should be unloaded when it is not being used--guns and ammunition should be stored safely beyond reach of children and careless adults.

8. Never climb a tree or fence with a loaded gun.

9. Never shoot at a flat, hard surface, or the surface of water.

10. Do not drink alcoholic beverages of any type when handling firearms.

Along with these fundamentals use common sense in the field. Always be sure of your target before pulling the trigger. Examine your safety frequently; sudden jars and brushing against twigs or brush can release the safety catch without your knowing it. When you are in the woods or close cover wear some article of bright color. NEVER shoot at a sound, to do so is an act of foolish irresponsibility. Don't take chances.

A good hunter knows his responsibilities and fulfilling these responsibilities is the most important thing about hunting. Insist that your fellow hunters follow the safety rules too. Even a near accident can ruin the pleasure of a day's hunt.

Allison, Petty In Showdown

COLLEGE STATION

Bobby Allison continued to close the gap on Richard Petty's lead in the NASCAR Winston Cup Point Standings by winning the American 500 at Rockingham Oct. 22.

Both Petty and Allison have been engaged in a hotly contested battle all season which will come to a showdown in the third annual Texas 500 at the Texas World Speedway on Sunday, November 12.

Petty will be seeking his third consecutive win at the mammoth Texas facility and his fourth Grand National championship. Another title for the Randleman, North Carolina native would make him the first driver in the history of NASCAR to accomplish such a feat.

Allison has already duplicated his winning season of last year by taking the checkered flag ten times in Grand National competition and earning $255,050.

USAC contenders, A. J. Foyt and Johnny Rutherford along with ARCA's Ron Hutcherson won't make anything easier for the NASCAR drivers entered in the Texas 500. The highflying Foyt has already beaten them in two out of three outings this season and the versatile Rutherford is always capable of winning any race he enters. Hutcherson will return fresh from his victory here in the Royal Triton ARCA 300.

The entry of Clint Hutcherson of Westminster, California raises the total number of entries to 72, with over a week remaining before the deadline.

The action-packed race week gets underway on Thursday, November 9.

Start of the third annual Texas 500 is set for 1 p.m. on Sunday, November 12.

Backs Spring To 17 - 0 Yoe Win

Halfback Stanley Rosemond Friday night broke left end for 38 yards and the first touchdown of a 17-0 win over 1-7 Copperas Cove.

It proved to be the first of a long line of dashes for Cameron's corps of halfbacks led at Cove Field by George Whiteside with 80 yards in 15 carries and Roland Young with a shopping 127 yards.

Rosemond's touchdown seemed almost too easy as he cleared the defensive backfield and scampered in for the first of two Yoe touchdowns, two points after and a field goal, the kicking by Gene Kopriva. The first score came with 2:26 gone in the first quarter. Kopriva kicked the PAT.

Copperas Cove faltered on the first series and Whiteside and Young churned out three first downs to set up Kopriva's field goal from the 11 only minutes later.

In the third quarter, Young, the Yoe mileage leader for the evening, capped a drive of 57 yards with a 15-yard straight-ahead for the TD. Kopriva converted to make the score 17-0. That was it.

CC Bulldog quarterback Dell Henderson tried the firm Yoe line all evening with 193-pound John Hull and Ed Harrelson, but yardage was almost nil the first half and ended with 76 yards net in the second half.

The Yoe forwards drew the line while emptying wide spaces for Whiteside, Young, Rosemond and company to gain 274 yards rushing. QB Will Turner ran a few times and hit one pass out of 9. It was clearly the running backs night.

Five pass interceptions by Cameron Defensive backs stopped Cove's passing attack, though Henderson hit 8 of 19 throws in the Parents Night effort. Five completions came in the first half.

Beside the consistent Cameron halfback gainers of 7 to 15 yards, penalties moved the ball most of the evening. Combined penalties were 135 for the evening.

One other field goal attempt by Kopriva went wide in the fourth quarter, which was the last time Cameron threatened or tried. Kick came from the Cove 11.

Interceptions were by Turner, Ellison, Wilson and Cummings, who nabbed two. The defensive battle was won by the Yoe forwards.

PENSKE On Performance

The average cost of a new car has jumped exactly $300 in only two years. A medium-priced domestic sedan sells for more than $3,700.

One of the major reasons for the increasing cost of a new car is the cost of researching and perfecting safety features. New car bumpers in 1973, for example, provide five-mile-an-hour collision protection. They are, however, quite costly.

Another safety item under consideration is the air bag. This device, designed to inflate and protect passengers during an accident, is still in the experimental stage but may well be aboard by 1976.

A third area under research is lighting. In the past couple of years, side running lights have been reintroduced and additional driving lights added up front. Rear lights now are uniform, and turn signals are a dazzling amber rather than a confusing red. Such developments cost money.

One happy consequence is that insurance rates may decrease, thanks to safer cars. One insurance company now offers a 15 per cent reduction for safer bumpers.
